

Water Heater Issue

Some people have reported that their water smells like sulfur when they first turn it on. This happens most often after the condominium has been unoccupied for quite some time.

The sulfur smell is the result of the same water being continuously reheated inside the water heater.

Should you ever notice this smell when you first turn your water on, open a couple of faucets throughout the condominium and allow the water to run until the smell subsides.

Be sure to keep an eye on those faucets while doing this to make sure the sinks don't overflow!
